BCTA in conjunction with Natural Resources Canada's FleetSmart is pleased to introduce a program for fleet managers titled Fuel Management 101.

This workshop is designed to assist fleet managers to prepare a fuel management plan for their company/institutional fleet, implement the plan, and measure and monitor it's success.

The program is designed around 4 phases:

- Why you should have an energy management plan;
- How to make a plan;
- How to benchmark your fleet;
- How to sell your plan to management, to implement your plan, analyze the results and plan for the future.

Why do we need a fuel management plan? As managers you may have been asked these questions?

- We need a baseline of the fuel usage for our fleet. How do we do that?
- How can we make our fleet more fuel efficient?
- How can we cut our fleet operating costs and still reduce the impact on the environment?

If so, how did you answer these questions? Did you have the answers? How were your answers received?

If you haven't faced these questions, you will. Every year, there is increasing emphasis on improving the environment. More and more organizations are getting on-side to do their part in reducing fuel consumption and harmful vehicle emissions.

Fuel Management 101, a one-day workshop will provide you with the tools necessary to answer these questions and walk away with many tips, ideas and a template for creating a fuel management plan for your fleet.

The information in this program applies to fleets of all kinds – so if you manage a municipal fleet, taxi fleet, trucking company, courier company etc. you'll find the information invaluable.
